NEW ATTRACTIONS

For The State Fair to be held
September 21-26.

Fourteen Shows of the Ferari Carnival Company Engaged at Great Expense.

At great expense the officers of the State Fair Association have engaged the fourteen shows of the Ferari Carnival Company for the big fair which will be held in Owensboro next week. This attraction is one of the largest that has ever been engaged for a fair in any but the large cities and costs a large sum of money. The officers of the fair, however, are not sparing any expense to make this the best fair that has ever been given in Kentucky and in spite of the cost engaged the Ferari company. This company is acknowledged to be the leading attraction of its kind in the country, carrying 250 people and never showing in small cities.

The engagement of the carnival company means that the state fair this year is to have many more attractions than ever before and that it will be run on a much more elaborate scale. Those interested in the fair are confident that the addition of the Ferari shows will be a big drawing card and they are jubilant over the engagement of it. The company is now showing in Louisville in connection with the carnival of the Central Labor Union and has attracted large crowds each day. They have given universal satisfaction and it is conceded to be the best carnival company ever seen in Louisville.

The attractions of the company number fourteen besides the free shows, which are five in number. The most famous of the shows is the loop-the-loop, which is done by Diavolo on a bicycle. It is one of the most daring performances ever attempted by any man. Another big feature is the wild animal show exhibiting trained lions and other wild animals. Over 40 lions are carried by this show and some of them are the finest specimens in captivity. Speedy does a high dive from a ladder 118 feet high into a shallow tank of water; four men ride bicycles inside a bowl shaped track which is lifted four feet off the floor, so that it has no bottom; a man rides a bicycle down a long flight of steps and there are many other superior attractions that will draw immense crowds to the big fair. One fare for the round trip on all railroads.

RESIDENCE DESTROYED.

Well Known Farmer's Heavy
Loss By Fire.

Mr. I. M. Fort's residence, situated a few miles South of Guthrie, was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The flames were caused by sparks from the kitchen due. Nearly all the furniture was saved, but a lot of silverware, clothing, etc., burned. The building was a two-story frame. Mr. Fort was absent, his wife and a servant girl being the only persons on the place.

The loss is about $1,200. There was no insurance.

BANKERS CONVENE

And Hold Interesting Session of State Association.

Brilliant Banquet at Hotel Latham Wednesday Night—
President's Address.

The Bankers Association of Kentucky met Wednesday in its eleventh annual session in the parlors of Hotel Latham.

The session opened with an invocation by Rev. W. L. Nourse. Prof. H. Clay Smith delivered the address of welcome, which was happily responded to by Mr. B. G. Witt, of Henderson.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

President E. B. Long delivered his annual address which was, in part, as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Kentucky Bankers' Association:

"It affords me great pleasure to welcome you here. The people of Hopkinsville are delighted to see you and will be glad to show you genuine hospitality. They are ready to give you the best they have in the pantry, and if there is anything you want and do not see, just ask for it.

"I am glad to say that at the present time the bankers of Kentucky are, in accord with the general surroundings, in a prosperous condition.

"In surveying the present outlook, as it presents itself to the enquiring mind, we notice pre-eminently the marked tendency to consolidation in all branches of commerce and interests. * * * Only by consolidation of interests can conditions be reached, which will enable the trader to live and to prosper to a certain extent. There is no business in which these axioms are more true than in the banking business.

"The pernicious principle of paying interest on deposits has grown to a ruinous extent; on the other hand charges for services, rendered by banks to the public, have been almost eliminated, and rates of discount have been greatly lowered. Notwithstanding our boasted progress, antiquated methods of business, which could be improved upon without detriment to any body, are still adhered to, to the cost of the bankers.

"Unfair laws, engrained upon the statutes of the state, giving undue preference to the supply-men's claims over bank loans, should in my opinion receive the attention of this association with a view to the proper adjustment by appeal on the part of the legislature."

The secretary, Mr. Isham Bridges, of Louisville, read his report, showing a membership of 187.

The treasurer, Mr. E. W. Hayes, submitted his report, showing a balance of $255.72 in the treasury. The chairman of the executive committee also submitted an interesting report, urging the proposed amendment to section 181 of the state constitution.

In the afternoon a brief session was held, at which Mr. John G. Winn, of Mt. Sterling, led a discussion on "Speculation and the Money Market."

Mr. R. E. Hughes, secretary of the Kentucky Exhibit Association, is on hand, putting in some good licks for the World's Fair. He wants the body to meet in St. Louis next year.

THE BANQUET.

Wednesday night the banquet at Hotel Latham was held after a concert in the lobby, lasting until ten o'clock. The music was by Charlie's Band, of Nashville. Covers were laid for about 125, and the guests were seated at three long tables running the length of the dining room. Capt. Whitlow was sick in bed, but his son, Browne Whitlow, looked after the service with a skill and care far beyond his years. The toastmaster, Mr. Thos. C. Underwood, sat at the west end of the middle table, at the

There were nine responses to toasts, all short, and the speeches were of a kind to entertain rather than to instruct. They were all happy and appropriate and held the crowd until about 1:30 a. m. YESTERDAY'S SESSION.

At the closing session yesterday morning two interesting papers were read. One was by Mr. Logan

C. Murray, of Louisville, on "The Aldrich Bill."

The other by Mr. Ira L. Smith, of Hopkinsville, on "Benevolence of Bankers."

The bankers from all sections of the state were called upon for reports and their reports were of uniformly favorable conditions, except a tightness of money matters in some localities.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Mr. E. B. Long as President and Mr. Isham Bridges, of Louisville, Secretary.

The following Vice Presidents were elected by districts:

J. R. Wylie, Princeton.
J. E. McPherson, Hopkinsville.
J. M. Covington, Franklin.
Jno. T. Moore, Hartford.
J. S. Escott, Louisville.
J. R. Downing, Georgetown.
J. S. Gaugh, Wilmore.
W. C. Richardson, Ashland.
Jno. G. Winn, Mt. Sterling.
J. M. Simpson, Albany.

The association was formally invited to meet next year in Ashland. Mr. B. T. Smith, of Horse Cave, offered a resolution thanking the bankers and people of Hopkinsville for their entertainment, which was passed unanimously.

Mr. Casseday, of Louisville, offered an appropriate resolution expressing regret upon the death of Hon. W. Boring, a member of the association, at London, which was passed.

The association adjourned at noon.

RECEIPTS AND SALES

Small This Week—Shipments Going Out Steadily.

The sales of tobacco this week were small and were made up chiefly of the lower grades, which sold for the ruling prices. The shipments are going out steadily, but are not so large as those of a month ago. Receipts for the week were also small. Receipts for the year amount to 11,335 hogheads, and sales for the year, 9,385 hogheads.

The crop this year is one of the best that has been raised for several years. It is fine in quality and plentiful.

The loose tobacco market will open in a few weeks.

DANIEL WEBSTER'S GIN

Similarity to Water Caused Amusing Incident in the Senate.

A former member of congress from Connecticut related to me a very amusing incident he witnessed on his first visit to congress in 1859, says a writer in the Denver Republican. He had a position in the lobby, just over the seat of Mr. Webster, who was to make his great speech on the compromise question, but before he began his speech a page put upon his desk a pitcher and a tumbler, from which he refreshed himself several times in the course of the long speech he made and at its conclusion Isaac P. Walker, democratic senator from Wisconsin, arose to reply, and as his seat was next to Mr. Webster he reached over, and pouring out a glass of water, as he supposed, drank it and in a few moments such a spluttering and gasping as followed disclosed the fact that the Massachusetts senator had been inspired in his greatest effort by Byron's source of inspiration—gin! The shouts of laughter which followed, in which Mr. Webster joined most heartily, and the confusion and loss of breath entailed on Mr. Walker, caused him to yield the floor to some one else.

Silas Wright was another of those statesmen who needed a stimulant and found it before beginning an important speech in the cloakroom, where a supply could always be obtained in those days. I cannot recall any such unseemly exhibition as was witnessed at the close of the last congress on the floor of the senate. The habit was common, not disgusting, as more recent times have witnessed.

The drinking was, I think, much heavier than now, but it was not indulged in openly. The dinners were in some cases the medium of heavy drinking, but a debauch was rare. In those early days the members and senators herded together in the various boarding houses with which Washington abounded. They formed "messes" of which in one house or another, in another, and they seldom mixed, for at these "messes" political action was discussed in the most unreserved manner. Mr. Webster, Col. Benton and a few others then kept house and had their families resident there, but in the majority of instances these bachelor house-

PRAISE YOUR WIFE.

It Won't Injure Her Any and It May Help You Some.

Praise your wife, man, for pity's sake, praise your wife when she deserves it. It won't injure her any, says Anna Edwards, in United Presbyterian, though it may frighten her from its strangeness. If you wish to make and keep her happy, give her a loving word occasionally. If she takes pains to make you something pretty, don't take it with only: "Yes, it is very pretty. Won't you hand me my paper?" It will take you only a moment's time to kiss her and tell her she is the best wife in town. You will find it to be a paying investment—one which will yield you a large return in increased care and willing labor for your comfort. Lending praise will lighten labor wonderfully, and should be freely bestowed.

I called on a friend one day and found her up to her eyes in tears. "Oh, dear," she said, "this is one of my bad days; everything goes wrong, and I haven't got a thing done."

"Let me help you," I said. "No, no," she replied, gently pushing me into the sitting-room. "I'm going to leave everything and rest awhile; but I must just wipe up this slop first," pointing to an ugly spot which disfigured the pretty cloth.

Just as she stooped to do it, her husband came in; he didn't see me, but went straight to his wife. One quick lift, and he placed her on her feet, and, taking the cloth from her hand, wiped up the spot himself.

"There, busy-bee," said, "you have done enough to-day. You tired yourself all out getting my favorite dinner. Now, I think I'll leave the rest till to-morrow."

I spoke to him then, and he sat with me a few moments before going down town. Shortly after my friend came in, looking very much amused.

"I guess I was in the dumps," she said, laughing, "for I've finished; and everything has gone swimmingly since E— came in."

LESSONS BY THE SEASIDE.

Custom That Has Grown in Favor at English Resorts.

At most English seaside resorts, says London Tit-Bits, and especially at those of a fashionable kind, the seaside governess, for the summer months is a fastidious habit that has evidently come to stay, and the writer has seen one instance, that seems to flourish alike, of a regular seashore school, all the pupils sitting around the teacher on the sands. In most cases a mother who has arrived at a seaside place for the summer months has not hitherto found it convenient or expedient to send her young people to a regular school, for to do so would be to deprive them of their full share of sun, fresh air, and sea-breeze. But at Folkestone and certain other places qualified teachers hit upon the happy idea of taking pupils by the week, and agreeing to instruct those in the open air to such an extent as would at least keep up the knowledge already gained by their pupils. Such a course relieves the mother in more senses than one, and it does not destroy the holiday sense in the child.

In most cases teacher and pupil meet at a given place every morning, and then they troop off to some quiet spot—generally a different one every day—where they, in the main, engage in the most pleasurable kind of lessons, such as reading aloud, holding spelling bees, drawing from a figure on a blackboard or from nature, and so on. In some cases known to the writer the seaside governess has had a good, strong tent provided, and when the morning has been wet the pupils have resorted to this, to the immense relief of their mothers, who well know how temper-tiring it is to have a lot of dainty young people on hand in hired rooms on a wet day. In the case of the bigger girls, the sense of always having young companions has tended to make the seashore schools the great success they are.

TRYING ON SHOES.

Which Foot to Fit First a Problem for the Clerk.

"The question of which foot to fit first is an important one to you," said the shoe salesman, as he tugged to get a small pair of Oxfords on a large foot, according to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "It may seem strange to you, but it is rarely that we do not experience some trouble in fitting one foot while the other is easily covered. A popular belief obtains that the left foot of every person is the hardest to fit, and consequently, many shoe clerks always try a shoe on that foot first. It is not true, however, according to my observation, that there is any inflexible rule as to which foot to try first. It is true, nevertheless, that in a majority of cases if you succeed in fitting the left foot you will have no trouble with the right. My practice is to try both feet before I pronounce a pair of shoes a perfect fit. Then I am sure of avoiding any mistake growing out of peculiarities of foot formation. No two people have feet formed exactly alike, and the shoe salesman who thinks so and is governed accordingly, will meet up with many complaints. For some time I pondered over the problem of fitting shoes to feet, and especially as to why the left foot should be considered the standard by which to be governed. The only rational theory I have ever been able to evolve is a very simple one when you come to consider it. Nine out of ten people you meet are right-handed, as we say. About one person in ten, or perhaps the per cent, is even less than that, uses his left hand. If you will observe a person who uses the right hand when he or she is standing and talking, it is invariably rest their weight on the left foot. And vice versa, a left-handed person will rest his or her weight on the right foot. The result is that with right-handed people the left foot is probably a fraction larger than the right foot, and the shoe clerk must inevitably find this to be a fact sooner or later. That, in my opinion, is the explanation of the common belief that the left foot is the standard to go by in the fitting of shoes. But as I have already said, there is no rule that is absolutely safe to follow, and my plan is always to fit both feet before I let a customer leave the house."

A HUNDRED YEARS HENCE.

What Americans Will Be Like in the Year 2000 A. D.

What will the American people be like in 100 years?

This question has been answered by Gustave Michaud, a brilliant Frenchman, who has made a special investigation of the subject, says the New York World.

In an article contributed to the Century M. Michaud undertakes to prove that the American people are being changed in the above respects by the continual flood of immigration.

Fifty years ago, he says, 87 out of every 100 immigrants came from the northwestern countries of Europe—from England, Ireland, Germany, Norway and Sweden.

Today only 23 out of every 100 come from these countries, while the other 65 come from Italy, Russia, Hungary and Greece.

Last year, for instance, the number of Italians landed at the port of New York was 136,455, while the number of births in the Italian quarter of the city was 11,000, or nearly one-seventh of the total number.

Out of 493,369 immigrants who arrived last year 370,700 came from the south of Europe.

BLIND GIRL AND GOVERNOR.

She Named Doll Her Sister After His Little Daughter.

Gov. Odell spent two days in New York city visiting state institutions. The governor has made a systematic and painstaking inspection of every state institution within the last year. Possible no governor, says the New York Tribune, in the history of the state has so thoroughly gone into this work. Based upon this personal observation and study were the bills urged by the governor for reforms in state institutions.

Scouted around a table a few evenings ago were the governor and a party of friends. He drifted into a review of this work he has been doing and recounted various incidents that had come under his observation. Some were humorous, some pathetic, and all interesting.

"I was deeply touched," said the governor, "by a little thing which happened at the blind institute at Batavia. I was walking through the building when I noticed a golden-haired girl standing by a window. She had her back to me. I walked over to where she was standing and said: 'How do you do, my little lady?'"

"I supposed that she was the daughter of some of the officials of the place, as she was the only child I had seen. She turned sightless eyes to me, and then I saw she was blind. She was one of the most beautiful children I have ever seen. She said: 'Are you Gov. Odell?' I replied: 'Yes.' Then she said: 'Oh, I have been waiting to see you. I heard you were coming.' Then I took her up in my lap and said: 'What is your name?' She replied: 'Ruth.' Then I said to her: 'I have a little girl at home just about as big as you, but her name is Estelle.' The little one said to me: 'Do you know, I think I like the name of Estelle better than I do that of Ruth. Don't you?' I had to tell her that I thought Estelle about the prettiest name I knew. Then she told me that she was from Buffalo and was unable to go home for a vacation on account of missing treatment. Finally, when it came time to go, I said: 'Is there any message I can take back to my little girl from you?' 'Yes,' she said, 'you can give her my love.' 'Is that all?' I asked. 'No,' she said, and then threw her arms around my neck and kissed me. 'Say I sent her a kiss.'"

"The next day I was in Buffalo," continued the governor, "and I went into a shop and bought the biggest doll I could find and sent it to Ruth. A few days later I got a letter in which she thanked me for the doll, and told me that she could feel its eyes open and shut when she put it to bed at night. She concluded with: 'I have named my daughter Estelle, and I pray God every night that your little girl may never be blind.'"

Hated of Pigs.

A recent traveler in Somaliland gives the following curious incident showing the Mohammedan hatred for pigs: "We shot two war hogs, one a particularly big boar. Alan wished to keep the tusks, but, of course none of the Somalis would touch the unclean animal. At last a bribe of two rupees induced the Midgan woman to chop the tusks out with a hatchet. Even then she would not touch them and with the help of two sticks, which she used like a pair of tongs, put them on a camel. Then there was a long dispute about the hatchet. No one would touch it; it had been defiled. Of course this was pure affection and playing to the gallery on the ayah's part. At home with her native folk she would have gorged all the pigs she could get. But if flattered the Somalis and we marched off, the ayah holding the hatchet at arm's length as if it were going to bite her."

A Beacon Light.

The island of Heligoland now possesses a beacon which is the most powerful yet constructed. Instead of the costly Fresnel lenses, which are hitherto been considered indispensable for large beacons, the German engineers have used parabolic mirrors of glass. THE SECRET OF BEAUTY.

Middle-Aged Women as Well as the Young Should Study It.
A well-known French writer once preached in all seriousness the maxim that it is the first duty of women to look beautiful. But though he does not state his reasoning clearly, says the London News, it is evident that he considers beauty of expression more important than that of mere features. As the years roll by we cannot expect, nor can we even wish, if we are sensible women, to retain the radiant beauty of youth. On the other hand, the pleasant expression that denotes a sweet disposition will gradually glorify the plainest face. It is within the power of the middle-aged matron, with the added dignity that only years can bring, to possess a beauty and power of fascination that equals, or even surpasses, that of her vanished youth. It is now recognized that every age has a beauty of its own and it is no longer considered necessary in the age of mere and yellow leaf to hide pretty silver gray locks under those monstrous ties called mob caps, or to distort the still more graceful outlines of the matronly figure in that shapeless garment dignified by the name of the mantle. I am almost thinking that more time than skill are expended nowadays on suitable clothes for the mothers than on garments for the daughters. "Beauty unadorned" is most fitting for youth, but those of mature age require the most careful setting.

All the soft clinging materials, such as crepe de chine, linen de soie and voile, are particularly becoming to the matronly figure. The pretty peleries or capes now so fashionable, seen inventing for the special benefit of the middle-aged, provided they are chosen to suit the age of the wearer. I saw recently a charming dress of black voile made for an elderly lady. The skirt was tucked at the hips and the bodice was plaited and brought down into a point at the back. The front was made very prettily with the addition of a cape of white lace, with stole fronts to give it grace. Another pretty idea is to have the lace drawn across the shoulders rather like the early Victorian idea, and fastened in front like a fichu. I wish that more matrons that are inclined to embonpoint would realize that in order to decrease the appearance of stoutness, all the lines of lace or whatever trimming is used should run downwards only.

WELL-TRAINED SONS.

Ministers' Families Have Given Many Noted Men to the World.
Not the least gift of the American clergy (and their wives) has been the training of their sons. Think for a moment, says the Pacific Churchman, of Emerson, whose ancestors had been ministers for five generations. James Russell Lowell started from a minister's home. Oliver Wendell Holmes learned to tune his lyre in his father's parsonage. Henry Ward Beecher sprang from the loins of a grand old minister of brain and brawn.

Looking at the records of literature in England we find the same thing. Addison, Thomson, Goldsmith, Coleridge, Young, Cowper, Montgomery, Heber and Tennyson, were "sons of the prophets," and withal hymn writers and great poets. Turning to philosophy you have the same story. Dugald Stewart, Reid, Abercrombie and Benham were parsons' sons.

In general literature we find multitudes of ministers' sons—Swift, Macaulay, Thackeray, Kingsley and Matthew Arnold were clergymen's sons.

Of the more recent past or still living are such men as Lord Charles Beresford, Lord Curzon, Cecil Rhodes, W. T. Stead, Anthony Hope, R. D. Blackmore, Henry James, Marcus Dods and Grant Allen. Such names as these, supplemented by thousands less conspicuous, but none the less useful, that can be found in any American or English work of national biography, will stand as an abiding witness that ministers' sons turn out—and they turn out well.

When It Hurts.

Everybody enjoys price cutting unless he is in the same business. —Chicago Journal.

THIS HEN REARED KITTENS.

The Latter in Turn Adopted Certain Traits of the Hen.

Some years ago, says a writer in Forest and Stream, my attention was called to a hen that had adopted a litter of kittens. When I first saw them they had got their eyes open. Every day I spent an hour or more watching the old hen and her strange family. The hen would let the cat suckle the kittens, but when they were through she would drive the cat away and hover over the family. The cat was a tramp that fed with several others on swill brought from the city for hens and hogs. As far as I could see, the cat was willing to let the hen rear her kittens. The whole affair seemed natural, and was as intelligently arranged as if it had happened to human beings. I carefully noted the actions of the old hen and kittens. The kittens soon learned the calls of the hen, and the hen certainly understood the calls of the kittens. The hen would wander about the bushes, scratching for insects, which she ate without offering them to her adopted family. When the kittens wanted rest and sleep they made a thin cry, and the hen would immediately hover them. If they wanted food their cries sounded to me like the call to hover, but the hen understood and she led them to the milk dish. If the dish was empty she led them to the hen yard and looked for bits of meat or bread. If she failed to find food, she went to the house door and called until some one of the family brought out milk. Before the cat deserted her family, the hen would lead the kittens to a flat ledge, where the cats sunned themselves. The cat usually hunted up the hen in the early days, for a relief from an overflow of milk. Several times I saw the hen hunt for the cat when the kittens were hungry.

I noticed that the kittens as they became older failed to play like kittens taught by a mother cat and their voices remained weak and thin. In many ways they showed a lack of cat teaching. On the other hand, they adopted some of the ways of the hen. They would scatter like chickens and would scratch in imitation of the hen. I did not see them eat the insects which they found, excepting grasshoppers. Mr. Parsons was a practical man and wanted eggs, so he killed the kittens. If I had known what he intended to do I should have offered to buy them for further study. The intelligence of the cat, hen and kittens, under strange conditions, was so evident that a dull observer could not make a mistake. The cat reasoned that the hen would take good care of her family and she was contented, like some human mothers that give their babies away. The hen understood fully that the kittens would not eat the insects which she found and reasoned that she must look for food in another direction and in intelligently acted upon this reasoning.

CHANGE OF AIR.

Does Not Do as Much Good as Change in Habits of Life.

The quasi-miraculous benefits which are associated with change of air in the popular belief are in reality derived when they accrue from change of environment and change of habits of life, says the Medical Review. In a great many instances the measure of benefit obtainable would be as effectually secured, and at much less expense, by mere change of habits, without fatigue and inconvenience of change of domicile. The overworked city clerk might adopt a vacation, while the cabman would find it a relief to discharge for a time the functions of caretaker of a deserted house. Many an overworked physician would experience a distinct improvement were he to qualify as chauffeur, with no other object in view than to cover space, and there are few domestic servants whose health would not be sensibly modified by a brief experience as milkmaid or gleaner, should the season lend itself to that pursuit. The "literate gent," whose brain is sterile of new ideas, might recuperate his energies by usurping the role of a sick man and remaining in bed for a week or two.

The tailor at his bench,

All have bad backs.

Vastly annoying, but always cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

A Hopkinsville merchant tells of a cure.

Edw. J. Duncan, merchant tailor, at 11 W. Seventh street, living at 119 East Nineteenth street, says: "Backache by no means an enviable companion for any one who follows my occupation. It is extremely uncomfortable to remain in a sitting posture and an aching in the small of the back makes such work a continual torture. I suffered in this way, off and on for years, and it is no wonder that I heartily wished that I might find something to bring me even the least relief. I first noticed Doan's Kidney Pills through reading papers sent to me from my native country, England, and was impressed with the merits of this remedy and when soon afterwards I noticed similar local advertisements I went at once to Thomas & Traherne's drug store and got a box. I had used them only a short time when I felt a great deal better. The head-ache which had so distressed me left and the pains in my back were greatly relieved. I am convinced from my experience that Doan's Kidney Pills are a wonderful remedy."

Child Taken From Father.

The child of the Rev. Ellenborg, a holiness leader at Ansonia, Ala., down with typhoid fever and refused medical attention by her father, was taken from him and handed over to the physicians for treatment. The father is in jail.

Stomach Trouble.

"I have been troubled with my stomach for the past four years," says D. L. Beach, of Clover Nook, Farm, Ga. "I was induced to buy a box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. I have taken part of them and feel a great deal better. If you have any trouble with your stomach try a box of these tablets. You are certain to be pleased with the result. Price 25 cents. For sale by C. K. Wylie, drugist."

Surrendered to Authorities.

Isaac McGeehan and George H. Huntington of the Columbia Supply Company, who were indicted in Washington in connection with the postal scandals, surrendered themselves to United States Marshal Henkel in New York city.

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Sumner counties, Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; as attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any relief, when a neighbor, learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. For sale by C. W. Wylie.

Burglars Opened Safe.

Burglars drilled and opened the safe in the room of Frank Bailey, a Caro, Mich., engineer on the Caro division of the Michigan Central, and secured $3,800 in currency.

Indiana Poetry.

The "limit" of poor verse has been reached by a Hoosier who feigningly writes:
The poor, blighted Hindoo,
He does the best he kin do!
He sticks to his caste from first to last,
And for pants he makes the skin do.

Too many people make the skin do the work that the bowels and kidneys should do. A bilious, constipated condition means a yellow skin, lusterless eyes, foul breath, and a general woe out feeling. All this can be remedied by the use of Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin, which is sold by druggists and dealers in medicine.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way of cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear, or, if perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that can be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

COMMITTEES CALL.

For Ward Conventions to Nominate Candidates For City Council.

At a meeting of the Democratic city committee for the city of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, held on September 14, 1903, said committee consisting of George E. Gary, Larkin T. H. Brasher, Frank Bassett and Punter Wood, Jr., all members being present, the following call was thereupon issued:

A mass convention of the Democrats is hereby ordered to be held in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 6th and 7th wards of the city of Hopkinsville, Ky., on the 30th day of September, 1903, at 4:30 o'clock p. m. to nominate Democratic candidates for councilmen in above mentioned ward and that all Democrats residing in each of said wards who will be entitled to vote at the November election, 1903, and the candidate who receives the highest number of votes of each said ward participating in said ward convention shall be declared the nominee for councilmen in their respective wards by the Democratic city committee.

That said ward convention will assemble at the following places to wit:

First ward, City court room.

Second ward, Moayon's hall

Third ward, Tandy and Stevens warehouse.

Fourth ward, Wheeler's warehouse, east of railroad.

Sixth ward, Pouike's coal yard.

Seventh ward, Breen's stable.

The chairman and secretary of each ward convention shall certify the result of the convention to the city committee on the day of the holding of the conventions at the city court room on the same day immediately after said conventions.

CUMBERLAND COMPANY

Has Put in a New and Satisfactory Service at Caneyville.

The Caneyville, Ky., Hustler says a new exchange has been put in its town by the Cumberland Telephone company, which it compliments as follows:

"The Cumberland system is now in operation here to the delight of all. There are now twenty-nine subscribers on this exchange, with several more to be added in the near future. Their service has been perfectly satisfactory. The manager spares no effort in rendering prompt and efficient service; for instance, the generator at the exchange here refused to work last Saturday evening about eight o'clock and the night operator at once informed the local manager at Leitchfield. He took the next train for this place, arriving here about nine o'clock, and in a few minutes he had everything working properly. Such promptness and efficiency in service is meeting the approval of all, and many new subscribers will soon be added to this exchange."

INDEPENDENT TELEPHONES.

Tennessee Company Will Again Apply for a Franchise From City.

When the new City Council organizes the bill of the Tennessee Telephone Company, which wishes to establish an independent telephone system in Nashville will be introduced, a 50 year franchise is to be asked, giving the city the right to purchase after twenty-five years. Telephones are proposed to be furnished for $3 a month for business houses and $2.50 a month for residence instruments. Thirty free telephones will be given the city and a reduced rate made on additional ones which may be needed. The city at present uses in the neighborhood of fifty or sixty telephones for the various departments. — Nashville American.

INSURANCE COMPANY WON.

Its Defense Was That the Insured Had Committed Suicide.

An Education at a Nominal Cost.

The Southern Normal School and Bowling Green Business College, of Bowling Green, Ky., are two of the greatest schools of their kind in the South. During the year just closed more than 1,000 different boarding students matriculated, more than three hundred of these being in the Business College alone. The institution is magnificently equipped and the work is thoroughly organized.

Specialists are in charge of the various departments and the instruction is high-class and thorough.

The Normal School operates the schools of Law, Music, Elocution and Oratory, Pedagogy and the Preparatory, County Certificate, State Certificate, Junior Scientific, senior Scientific and Classical Courses. The Business College embraces the departments of Penmanship, Stenography and Typewriting, Telegraphy and Civil Service, and in addition the regular courses in Book-keeping. Expenses are very reasonable. The Business College does the finest work in any of the South in getting lucrative positions for its graduates. Those interested are cordially invited to send for circulars and catalogue. Address H. H. Cherry, Bowling Green, Ky. Catalogue and Journal free.

SNOW AND RAIN

Cause Enormous Damage to Crops in the Northwest.

Snow and rain has damaged crops in the Northwest during the past week to the extent of millions of dollars. Nearly all the grain in shock, estimated at 50 per cent., and all of the standing grain, much of it flax, is buried under snow and water. Rain and sleet and snow prevail all over the Northwest. Railroad tracks are washed out and trains are abandoned. The trains from the Pacific Coast have been pushing slowly through the deep snow for two days, and are from 10 to 20 hours late.

Two feet of snow covers the ground in parts of North Dakota and the "beautiful" is six inches deep on a level in Yellowstone Park. Farmers throughout the state of Nebraska are attempting to save their crops from the heavy frosts by building fires in the fields.

BOREING DEAD.

Only Republican Congressman From Kentucky Victim of Pneumonia.

Mountain Leader of His Party Who Represented the Eleventh District.

London, Ky., Sept. 16.—Hon. Vincent Boreing, Representative in Congress from this district, died at his home in this city at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, of pneumonia. Judge Boreing was born in Washington county, Tennessee, November 24, 1839. At the age of nine years he came with his father, Murray Boreing, to this county, and began his education at Laurel Seminary, which institution is still conducted here. At the age of twenty-one he entered the Union army as a volunteer in Company A, Twenty fourth Kentucky infantry. He soon rose from the ranks, and was commissioned First Lieutenant. In the battle of Resaca, Ga., he received a severe wound, from which he suffered until the day of his death.

Judge Boreing first entered politics in 1868, when he was elected County Superintendent of Public Schools. In 1870 he was again a candidate for the office and was re-elected. Soon after he founded the Mountain Echo, of this place, now the oldest weekly Republican paper published in the State. He continued in the newspaper business for about ten years and was then elected County Judge. In 1888 he was elected president of the First National Bank of London, and continued to be president up to his death. He was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and represented the delegate in the General Conference of 1880, held at Cincinnati, Ohio. At the time of this conference he was an ordained minister of the M. E. Church, and since then had preached in various counties of the mountains. He was chosen Department Commander of Kentucky, Grand Army of the Republic, in 1889.

His highest ambition was realized when he was elected a member of Fifty-sixth congress. He was re-elected to congress in 1900 and 1902, defeating some of the strongest men of his party. Judge Boreing was twice married, his first union being with Miss Martha Paris, a daughter of one of the county's most prominent families. To this union five children were born. His second marriage was to Miss Sarah E. Randall, a daughter of the late Judge Randall.

LOUISVILLE COMING.

American Association Team Will be Here.

Hopkinsville Won Two Games From Jackson—Cairo Captured the Pennant.

The Louisville team, which is a member of the American Association, will play here with the local club Thursday and Friday of next week. The Louisville boys make up one of the best teams in the Association and they made a fight for the championship against St. Paul.

For the past three months the Louisville nine has been playing the fastest ball in the association, and would have won the pennant had it not been for bad luck at the beginning of the season. Their line-up will be the same as during the league season, and the Hopkinsville fans will have an opportunity of seeing how our boys compare with the visitors. The Hopkinsville nine will be greatly strengthened by the addition of several new men, and the games between the two clubs promises to be the most interesting contest ever witnessed at Athletic park. The visitors could not be secured, except on a large guarantee and all lovers of national sport should turn out and see these games. The admission each day will be 50c.

The K.-I.-T. league season closed on Wednesday. On that day only two games were played—Hopkinsville and Jackson at Hopkinsville, and Clarksville and Paducah at Clarksville. Hopkinsville won from Jackson and Paducah from Clarksville. The result of these games did not affect the pennant winner, Cairo heading the list and winning.

Following is the standing of the clubs at the close of the season:

	WON.	LOST.	PCT.
Cairo.....	67	41	.620
Clarksville.....	60	43	.582
Jackson.....	52	51	.505
Henderson.....	48	60	.444
Paducah.....	46	61	.429
Hopkinsville.....	45	62	.420

In the game here Wednesday Hopkinsville won by the score of 11 to 2. The locals made 15 hits and only one error. Bomar and Street composed the battery for Hopkinsville, and Watts and Freeman and O'Connell made up the Jackson battery. Jackson's two scores were made in the first inning by a home run, the ball going over the left field fence, with a man on first. After this the tallies of the Jackies were all goose eggs. Hopkinsville pummeled Watts all over the field and when he was taken out of the box there was little change, as the locals continued the good work, and gave the Tennesseans plenty of exercise in the outfield.

A double-header was played Tuesday, the teams breaking even. In the first Hopkinsville won by the score of 8 to 5, and in the second Jackson was victorious, the score being 5 to 0. Edwards pitched both games for the locals. In the first game only five hits were made off him and he struck out fifteen men. In the second he struck out three men and allowed six hits. Cole, of the Jackson team, was hit pretty freely in the first contest, but in the second Gaston pitched and only allowed five hits. Both games were spirited and very interesting throughout. Costly errors by the Hopkinsville team was the cause of the locals losing Monday's game to Jackson. This, too, was a most interesting game and very close, the score being 4 to 2.

Bomar pitched for Hopkinsville. The visitors got eight hits and made only one error. Street, who had been absent in Alabama for several days, returned Monday and caught for Hopkinsville in all of the four games here.

The Paducah Primary

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 15.—The Democratic City Committee last night finished the official canvass of the returns from Thursday's primary, and there are no changes in the result as first announced. M. W. MISS ELIZABETH UBER, ALBANY, N.Y.

MRS. WILLIAM DEWEY, SARANAC LAKE, N.Y.

MISS ROSA GERBING, CROWA POINT, IND.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN WHO USE PE-RU-NA.

HEALTHY WOMEN

Praise Pe-Ru-na as a Cure and Preventative of Catarrhal Disorders.

Miss Elizabeth Uber, No. 67 Beasit street, Albany, N. Y., writes: "I have always dreaded the fall and winter because of my extreme liability to catch cold, when catarrhal trouble would quickly develop through my entire system which it would take weeks to drive away. I am thankful to say that since I have taken Pe-Ru-na, I do not have any reason to dread this any more. Last fall when I suffered with my old trouble I took Pe-Ru-na and in nine days was completely cured and since that time, if I have been at all exposed to the damp, wet or cold weather, I take a dose or two of Pe-Ru-na and it throws out any hint of sickness from my system. I gladly endorse it."—Miss Elizabeth Uber.

Mrs. Wm. Dewey, Saranac Lake, N. Y., is second cousin of Admiral Dewey. In a recent letter she says: "Pe-Ru-na is the most valuable of any remedy that I have ever used for coughs, colds, etc. I cheerfully recommend it as a certain cure if used according to directions."—Mrs. Wm. Dewey.

Miss Rosa Gerbing, a popular society woman of Crowa Point, Ind., writes: "Last winter I took a long drive in the country and being too thinly clad I caught a bad cold which settled on my lungs, and which I could not seem to shake off. I had heard a great deal of Pe-Ru-na for colds and catarrhs and I bought a bottle to try. I am pleased that I did for it brought speedy relief. It only took two bottles and I consider this money well spent."

"You have a firm friend in me, and I not only advise its use to my friends, but have purchased several bottles to give to those without the means to buy, and have noticed without exception if I have heard about a speedy cure wherever it has been used."—Miss Rosa Gerbing.

To neglect a cold is to invite chronic catarrh. As soon as anyone discovers the first symptoms of catching cold he should at once begin the use of Pe-Ru-na, according to directions on the bottle, and the cold is sure to pass away without leaving any bad effects. Unless this is done the cold is almost sure to end in the second stage of catarrh which is making so many lives miserable. If Pe-Ru-na was taken every time one has a cold or cough chronic catarrh would be practically an unknown disease. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-Ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Cincinnati, Ohio.

GEORGIA MINSTRELS

Will Open the Season at the Opera House To-Morrow Night.

Richard & Pringle's Famous Georgia Minstrels, with its fifty comedians, graceful dancers and sweet singers, comes to this city to-morrow, Sept. 19, for two performances at the opera house, a matinee in the afternoon and the regular performance at night. It will be the first show of the season and there will doubtless be a large crowd present at both performances. The features introduced by the company this season are novel, numerous and startling, and include many innovations on the field of minstrelsy. The singing portion of the show is the strongest put together—Carlyle William, Wm. Garland, Goode, Sidney Napoleon Johnson and T. P. Jones, the six highest salaried colored singers in the world.

In comedy the company is especially strong and numbers everybody's favorites—S. H. Dudley, Clarence Powell, Emmett Davis, Bank Campbell and Chas. Scott. The olio is made up of J. W. Cooper and his talking figures, Simpson & Pittman, musical artists; Campbell Bros., comic comedy exponents; Kraton, the marvelous hoop controller; Dudley & Kelley, comedy boomers; "Koonsky," in illusions; the No. 3 Tones, acrobats; Clarence Powell, in a new budget of funny sayings, and Dudley in his latest creation, "Jim Jackson at the Policy Shop."

The big parade takes place about noon, in which two big bands furnish the music and at 7 o'clock at night there will be a free concert in front of the opera house by the members of the company.

Seats are now on sale at the Postal telegraph office.

CHEER UP.

What We Need Is a New School of Jesters.

A contemporary opinion to the new profession of the "cheering of woman"—and would probably likewise object to the "cheering of man"—on the ground that the cheering man "pays," says the St. Paul Pioneer Press. People in trouble, it says, don't want to be coddled and consoled—don't want any cheerfulness about them. They want somebody to weep with them, to magnify their miseries and to justify their own opinion that they are the most harshly dealt with mortals on earth. Why should a man want to be happy when he has just buried his best friend, seen another friend marry the girl he himself has courted, lost a year's income at poker, bet on the wrong horse, or experienced such a shock as comes to one when a trusted partner decamps with all the funds of the firm?

But, however such a man may desire to be left alone in the contemplation of his sorrows, it is plain that—unless it may be in the way of spiritual discipline—such contemplation "doesn't pay." He has still his place to fill in the world, and anything that will the most speedily enable him to recover from the shock is a desideratum. The kings of old, who kept a jester at the elbow to turn every occasion into a source of merriment, were wise in their generation. The uncrowned monarchs of America may find an improved substitute for the jester in the "cheering of man." Many a time they can afford to pay him a good fee rather than enter upon a day's business unfitted for work by the magrims. Indeed, so necessary, as a usual thing, is cheerfulness to succeed, that a man inclined to dolor and misanthropy may often find it profitable to keep a "cheering-up" clerk always in his employ.

A Remarkable Cure.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by C. K. Wily, druggist.

THE KNOT IN THE PEARLS.

BY L. HARRY TRUMBOTT.

She was young and remarkably pretty, with a prettiness that is quite unmistakable and general. She acknowledged that she could never triumph over a frock that is not quite fresh or a style of hairdressing that is not altogether suitable. But then, in her case, it was such charming hair, so bright and so curly, that he told himself fashion-able dressing, which would have reduced her head to the level of a repetition of all the other heads in the room, would have been a mistake, a piece of vandalism. And as for the dress, that was, at any rate, simple although of the kind that is not expensive or even particularly tasteful, and he managed to overlook it. Yet that was something of a feat—to his credit or not, as you looked at the matter—for he had the reputation of being one of the most fastidious men in London. Moreover, the child—she was only a child, as he admitted—had absolutely no conversation.

But then she was dazzlingly blue, and their gaze had a rapid and heaven-searching quality that was unique even in his wide experience. If she could not, as it seemed, use with any fluency the tongue of men or of angels just excepting her hesitating "Oh yes," "Oh no," and such non-committal trifles, if she was poor at small talk, she was greatly accomplished at looking. From the first glance of her wide-open, innocent eyes, straying sometimes to his from the contemplation of heaven, seemed to bewitch him, to allure him, and, harder still, to hold him in attentive captivity at her side.

And she was 18 and badly dressed, while he owned to 35, and was well known as an accomplished man of the most sensitive and most exquisite taste.

The woman wasn't born, his friends had been in the habit of saying, who could entirely reach up to his standard of perfection; among themselves they had often pictured her, the nearest thing possible, the woman he would surrender to, and she was cultured and witty, delicately sympathetic, daintily beautiful, and certainly beautifully dressed to the last little detail. And it must be admitted that he had always pictured her so himself.

But while he was a man of ideals, he was also a man of great, of recognized talents, and his world set him up as a shining light, a man to be quoted and followed and generally upheld, although that he had said, "So after all the usual thing attracts him." Of course, she's sweetly pretty, and he'll choose her frocks." They didn't feel any less pleasure in their idol, because, at last, they had discovered his feet of clay, they were in doubt, enthusiastically inclined to applaud their newer and more homely view of him, and they let the girl with the heaven-searching eyes.

"After all," they said, "So after all the usual thing attracts him." Of course, she's sweetly pretty, and he'll choose her frocks." They didn't feel any less pleasure in their idol, because, at last, they had discovered his feet of clay, they were in doubt, enthusiastically inclined to applaud their newer and more homely view of him, and they let the girl with the heaven-searching eyes absorb him, while they looked on in an attitude of distinctly suggestive of hand clapping.

"After all," they would chorus, and some one would inevitably add: "Well, he'll know how to spend the money!" Yet it was common knowledge that he was overburdened with money, having been apparently too overburdened with brains to acquire it in any quantity.

And all the time he was with her he thought only of her eyes and his own power to waylay them from Heaven. But when he was not with her, many of his thoughts circled round the cheap row of pearls she invariably wore, and his mind attuned to great subjects took to itself a holiday and spent it in wondering why she tied a knot in them.

Was it of set design, or did she really think they looked better knotted? There had come into his mind, the first time he saw her, an odd saying, long forgotten, that a girl knots her pearls when she wants a love letter. Now did this girl of the innocent eyes in this manner deliberately advertise a want? And was it simply a love letter she wanted, as one might cover a rare curio, or, say, a first edition? (He said a first edition.) Or was it not, perhaps, a letter from a particular person she had set her heart on? Some one who might see the touching little indication of readiness to receive a tenderly worded epistle from some one who, it was hoped, would be eager to comply. Although this last possibility undoubtedly put the girl in the better light, it is noteworthy that it was not the idea he honestly favored.

He followed the little story further. For if the knot was the result of anything more than the merest accident, or other than a clumsy device for keeping the row tightly around her tight throat, then, since, as far as he knew, the knot was never untied, also, as far as he knew, she did not get her letters. The blue eyes were sometimes pathetic; in time it grew to hurting him that she should even possibly want what he could easily have supplied. The whole question, as childish as she was and as strangely engrossing, haunted and disturbed his leisure, and one night, having just left her, he sat down and wrote her a letter.

The bulk of the talents for which people praised him were in the habit of emerging from the point of his pen, and the letter was worthy of his reputation without being at all above her power of appreciation—even supposing she was in all things as young as she looked. It was simple, in fact, as her speech, and as beautiful, after its fashion, as her eyes; and, reading it over, he knew he had never done anything better. But he wasn't as mad as he might have looked—if anyone could have seen him and he only could have seen him in his pocket. Having been written to her, it was so sacredly hers, and to have it about him gave him a feeling of pleasure he acknowledged with a laugh, and for once did not try to account for in words.

After that he wrote her a letter every time he saw her, and, but that something happened about the sixth time, it is a matter to wonder at how far he would have allowed his pockets to bulge. What occurred was of the most commonplace description. In hunting for something else, he dropped one of the letters at her feet. She caught it up with a little cry. "Why, it's addressed to me!" If he had not stopped her she would have opened it there and then.

But he couldn't prevent her keeping it, nor prevent himself seeing the laugh in her eyes—a stray gleam that seemed to cast a new light on the pathways to heaven.

"If you like it," he said, "there are more," and he took out the pack, turning it over.

"But if they are mine I would much rather have them at once," she cried. "If they are mine you have no right to keep them!"

To tempt her into pleading for them, into more laughter, into quite a torrent of teasing and excited speech, he held out as long as he could. In the end she went off with her letters.

"I'm convinced it's some rubbish," she threw at him in parting; "and I do want to see just how silly you are!"

"Will you tell me how silly you think me?" he asked.

"If you're silly—enough," said she.

Of course he expected an answer—expected it feverishly, filled with a boyish impetuosity and unrest he had never surpassed in his boyhood. When it came, it was like her, he told himself, and it was certainly put in few words, if that was really like her, and his doubts on that subject were brand new ones. "Will you come and see me?" she wrote, naming an hour. Of course he went—praying the while that he should see her alone.

And she was alone; so far, he quickly saw the realization of his wish. Yet, for the moment, as he advanced toward her up the long room he hardly knew her—hardly recognized her unadorned beauty, the child of the dowdy frocks, in the perfectly dressed girl now waiting for him with laughter and blushes chasing each other on her bewildering face. For the first time in his life he found nothing to say, and so she was forced to begin. She seemed not unwilling.

"Your letters are charming," she said. She put a hand to the imitation pearls, side by side with some that looked priceless, among the laces at her neck and twisted them round to show him they were unknotted.

"Your letters are charming," she repeated with the least little break in her voice. Then she brightened and smiled. "And what do you think of my frock?"

"I think it is charming," he said.

She came nearer to him. "Will you answer me something?" she asked.

"Yes—yes—anything!"

"Only this—which sort of frock do you like me in best?"

"This," he said, true to his creed. "This—I suppose. Oh, my darling, we are starting at the wrong end, but if you keep the letters we shan't be able to afford such frocks!"

"I wouldn't give up the letters for anything," she declared.

"I go with the letters," he said.

Again the laugh in her eyes. "And I'd rather give up the letters than you," she smiled.

"Then hang the frocks!" he cried, and would have caught her to him, but she warded him off.

"Stop, stop!"—this as she blushed—"for a—Stop, won't you, please! Then don't you know, really? Don't you truly know?"

"What?"

"That I've more frocks and more money to buy new ones than I know what to do with, and—"

"Do you mean to tell me—"

"Let me tell you. I mean, I had the childish idea—I see now how childish it was—to try and pass myself off in your society as a poor American girl, for a change. And it was a failure; right as I looked, it was a failure, with just one exception. You are the exception, and until now I have never felt quite, quite sure that even you could be expected." In to her eyes crept their pathetic look.

"My dearest," he cried, "just for your sweet self I loved you! On my honor, I did not know, and I loved you because I could not help it."

"This time she did not ward him off."

"No woman wants to be loved for any other reason," she said, "and I shan't mind the money and things any more."

"And the knot in the pearls?" he asked, later.

"I knotted them at first because it seemed, somehow, in keeping with the stupid sort of girl I was. But when I noticed how you always stared at them, I kept them knotted!"

"Well, why?"

"To keep you—staring!" she laughed.

"And did you never find out?"

"Oh," she interrupted, "I asked just every one why a knot in a row of pearls should make a wise man—any man—stare so. I was always asking, until some one told me about the old saying of the love-letter, and then—"

"And then?"

"And then—? She still didn't tell."

"By then—" he amended.

"Oh, I'd like to finish," she said, bravely. "By then, I was so anxious for you to tell me, I wouldn't untie it. You see, she almost whispered, 'my heart was caught in the knot, and it wouldn't untie until you helped me.'—London Sketch.

FALSE ARREST

Alleged in Suit for Damages
Against Prominent Merchant

Dave Larkins, col., has filed suit here against J. E. Gossett for $1,000 damages and $10 attorney's fee. Mr. Gossett is a member of the firm of S. R. White & Co., merchants at Julien and Larkins lives in the same neighborhood.

Plaintiff alleges false arrest. He charges that Mr. Gossett, in November, 1902, procured without probable cause a warrant charging him with a breach of the peace in an unlawfully assaulting and by taking a load of corn from him without his consent, and by abusing and treating him. He further states that he was arrested and spent several days in jail before his trial, when the case was dismissed.

THE OLIVET MEETING

Will Begin Sunday, Instead of Having Commenced Last Sunday.

In our last issue we stated that the protracted meeting at Olivet Baptist church, near Garrettsburg, began last Sunday and was now in progress. This was incorrect, as the meeting will not begin until next Sunday, the 29th. It was at first planned to begin the meeting on the second Sunday, but for some reason a delay of a week was necessary. The meeting will begin Sunday and continue ten days or longer. The pastor, Rev. H. C. McGill, will be assisted in the meeting by Rev. M. E. Staley, of Morganfield. Rev. Staley is said to be a very able preacher and the meeting will doubtless result in much good.

More Riots.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the liver or kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nerve and the greatest all-around medicine for rundown systems. It dispels nervousness, rheumatism and neuralgia and expels malaria germs. Only 50c, and satisfaction guaranteed by R. C. Hardwick, Druggist.

CARRY NATION

Lectures to a Great Crowd at the Tabernacle.

Kansas Crusader Talks Vigorously and Entertainingly
For Prohibition.

More than 2,500 people turned out at the Tabernacle Tuesday night on short notice, to hear Mrs. Carry A. Nation—as she now signs her name—discourse of her crusading methods to put down saloons.

Mrs. Nation had been in the city for two days, the guest of her uncle, Esq. Alex. Campbell. There was of course much curiosity to see the woman who came into public notice from smashing saloons in Kansas with a hatchet and who has, as she stated, been in jail nineteen times for smashing saloons.

She is a stout old lady, with a motherly appearance and wears glasses. She wore a white dress, plainly made and she appeared to be entirely at ease on the platform. She first took up a collection for the benefit of the Tabernacle, while the audience sang a hymn.

She was introduced by Judge W. P. Winfree and her lecture occupied an hour or more.

She began by telling who and what she was and spoke of the misrepresentations that had hampered her work. Said she had brought suit to suppress Halstead's "Life of McKimley" because it misrepresented her. She said she did not expect to smash all of the saloons in Kansas, but wanted to smash enough of them to attract national attention to her work for prohibition.

She said Kansas was a prohibition State and the saloons she attacked were run in violation of the law, were nuisances that she or any one else had a legal right to abate. She soundly abused the officials who permitted these open violations.

She denounced both of the leading parties, and urged that the hope of the country was in the Prohibition party. She said there was no difference between the Democratic and Republican parties except that one was out and the other was in.

She discussed temperance and the evils of intemperance, saying that whiskey filled the jails, aimed houses and asylums.

She justified her crusade against saloons by saying that she was directed by the Lord on June 5, 1900, to go to Kiowa, Kan., and break up the saloons there. She went at once and took with her a number of stones in her buggy. She said she asked the Lord for another sign and the horse she was driving trotted and past a gate was accustomed to going in without even turning his head that way.

She went on to Kiowa and broke out the windows and otherwise demolished three saloons. Her first rock crashed through a large oil painting of a nude woman, that was in the finest saloon. She denounced the immoral pictures that were often to be found in saloons.

She was arrested, but as soon as she was released resumed her attacks.

At the close of her lecture she sold many souvenir hatchet pins. She said she had already established homes for the wives and children of drunkards at two places with the funds she raised by selling hatchets. A great many people bought the souvenirs.

Mrs. Nation left on the night train for Bay City, Mich.
